

Help Children with Lung and Immune Disease

A major emphasis at National Jewish Health is the pediatric program, National Jewish Health *for Kids, specifically designed for children and adolescents with allergy, lung and immune disorders.

National Jewish Health for Kids is a program of dedicated care from America's best pediatric specialists. We have created an environment in response to the increasing demand from parents and patients for treatment of asthma, atopic dermatitis, food allergies, rhinitis, immune problems and recurrent infections — all diseases that are increasing at alarming rates throughout the country.

---

Thank you for helping us to provide care and conduct research for children with lung and immune conditions.

---

National Jewish Health, the leading respiratory hospital in the nation, provides a multidisciplinary approach to personalized disease management where patients and families participate in appointments and therapeutic activities throughout the day. Patients come from around the world to receive cutting-edge, comprehensive, coordinated care from some of the best doctors in the field.

njhealth.org

The Eight and Forty has been supporting pediatric respiratory care at National Jewish Health since 1932.

Each year, the Partners fund special pediatric projects at the hospital. They have helped to supply:

- Art Therapy
- Children's Furniture
- Computers
- Medical Equipment
- Playground Equipment
- Recreation Room
- Research
- Toys

8and40.org